Integrated Healthcare Strategies Segment to Air on Inside Business Review

Integrated Healthcare Strategies, a human resource consulting firm, to be featured on Inside Business Review program hosted by Fred Thompson. Segment highlights challenges faced by hospital executives and how healthcare consulting firms can assist with strategic solutions.

MINNEAPOLIS, MN – November 12, 2010 - Integrated Healthcare Strategies (IHStrategies), a healthcare human resource consulting firm with offices in Minneapolis and Kansas City, today announced the first airing dates for its featured interview on Inside Business Review, hosted by Fred Thompson.

Inside Business Review is a news program that focuses on industries, trends, and relevant issues in American society, and is a powerful resource for management issues. The show is hosted by Senator Fred Thompson, a recognized politician and actor who first made a national name for himself with his role in revealing the audio-taping system in the White House Oval Office that uncovered the Watergate scandal.

The segment features how busy hospital executives juggle day-to-day challenges with longer-term issues, and how healthcare management consulting firms like IHStrategies can partner with healthcare organizations as advisors on strategic operational challenges to help them succeed, which in turn benefits their communities.

“Our extensive experience specializing exclusively in the people aspect of healthcare delivery has given us insight into the current and future needs of healthcare providers and allows us to offer them critical support and advice during these challenging times,” said Kevin Haeberle, EVP with IHStrategies, during the interview.
